

When Abraham Lincoln approached the Bankers in New York for money to defend the Union, the bankers said yes, at 24 to 36 % interest. Lincoln said thanks, but no thanks, then approached his adviser Colonel Dick Taylor for a solution...To which Taylor replied;

“Why, Lincoln, that is easy; just get congress to pass a bill authorizing the printing of full legal tender treasury notes... and pay your soldiers with them and go ahead and win your war with them also.”

When Lincoln asked if the people of the United States would accept the notes, Taylor said....

The people or anyone else will have no choice in the matter, if you make them full legal tender. They will have the full sanction of the government and be just as good as any money, as congress is given that expressed right by the constitution.” --Colonel Dick Taylor

Through Lincoln’s experience there is little wonder he formed the following opinion.

“The Government should create, issue, and circulate all the currency and credit needed to satisfy the spending power of the government and the buying power of consumers.

The privilege of creating and issuing money is not only the supreme prerogative of Government, but it is the Government’s greatest creative opportunity.

By the adoption of these principles...the taxpayers will be saved immense sums of interest. Money will cease to be master and become the servant of humanity.”

Abraham Lincoln.

An editorial article in the London Times expressed the central banker’s attitude towards Lincoln.

“If this mischievous financial policy, which has its origin in North America, shall become underrated down to a fixture, then that Government will furnish its own money without cost. It will pay of debts and be without debt. It will have all the money necessary to carry on its commerce. It will become prosperous without precedent in the history of the World. The brains and wealth of all countries will go to North America. That country must be destroyed or it will destroy every monarchy on the globe.”

Times of London

“The money power preys upon the nation in times of peace and conspires against it in times of adversity. It is more despotic than monarchy, more insolent than autocracy, more selfish than bureaucracy.” Abraham Lincoln.

After Lincoln’s Death S. P. Chase lamented: (Lincoln’s former Secretary of Treasury.)

“My agency in promoting the passage of the National Banking act (to the benefit of the international bankers), was the greatest financial mistake in my Life. It has built up a monopoly which affects every interest in the country.”

--Salmon P Chase.

A worldly observer sighed at Lincoln’s assassination;

“The death of Lincoln is a disaster for Christendom. There is no man in the United States great enough to wear his boots... I fear that foreign bankers with their craftiness and tortuous tricks will entirely control the exuberant riches of America, and use it systematically to corrupt modern civilisation. They will not hesitate to plunge the whole of Christendom into wars and chaos in order that the earth should become their inheritance.” --Otto Von Bismark

-G. G. McGeer revealed to Canadian parliament in a five hour speech that after the death of J W Booth, that he had received evidence from Secrete Service agents that was removed from the public record during Booths trial that John Wilks Booth was a mercenary acting upon instruction through the machinations of a group representative of the international bankers to have Lincoln assassinated.

Lincoln is only one of many who have fallen victims to this policy of the international bankers.
